Like many teenagers, William Turner needed braces. But what was a burden for many was a fascinating experience for him. It got him interested in dentistry, and later in his youth he even shadowed some of the staff at Croasdaile Dental Arts. "It was that defining moment that I knew I had found my calling," Dr. William W. Turner, DMD, says now. "I absolutely love the career I have chosen." He received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Biology from the UNC Chapel Hill in 1997 and received his Doctorate of Dental Medicine from Boston University in 2002. Being a native of North Carolina, Dr. Turner returned home in 2002 to join Croasdaile Dental Arts as an associate dentist and then became a practice owner in 2008. Dr. Turner is an active member of the North Carolina Dental Society, American Dental Association, and Academy of General Dentistry. "I have the privilege of working in a first class office," he says. "We have excellent dentists and staff who are extremely knowledgeable and experienced. Most of our staff has been with us more than 20 years. I think that in itself says a lot about the quality of our practice. We make a point to get to know our patients on an individual basis, which gives that added touch of comfort." Croasdaile Dental Arts provides a variety of aesthetic, restorative and hygiene dental services combining state-of-the-art equipment and the highest quality of materials to help you maintain optimal oral health and create your signature smile while keeping your comfort, health and individuality in mind.

For Dr. Jason W. Butler, the best part about being a dentist is that no day is ever the same. He's always meeting new and interesting people, and his schedule gives him the quality time that he wants with his patients without feeling rushed or stressed. "There is absolutely nothing better than a patient's first reaction to their new smile and knowing I achieved the 'wow' factor for someone who felt they had no options," Dr. Butler says. Butler says dentistry gives him the opportunity to combine his passions for both science and art to create beautiful, natural-looking smiles. Dr. Butler graduated from UNC Chapel Hill in 2004 with a Bachelor of Science in Biology and then went on to complete his Doctor of Dental Medicine in 2008 at the University of Alabama-Birmingham. Butler is a member of the American Dental Association, N.C. Dental Society, and the Durham/Orange County Dental Society. Having previously practiced dentistry in Raleigh, Dr. Butler joined Croasdaile Dental Arts in 2009 and became an owner in the practice in January 2011. Croasdaile Dental Arts has a distinguished style of dentistry, as their experienced team of professionals truly understand the impact of a healthy, beautiful smile.
